

BRIGHT FROM THE BEGINNING

Sage Computer is the industry's first computer company. We started here, we have stayed here. It's in our DNA.

We're constantly what we set out to be in the beginning: a company that designs and builds powerful, easy-to-use computers for other computer companies and their customers.

Other others were just beginning to get their first computers when Sage Computer was already the industry's first PC. And Sage Computer's first PC was a personal computer. It was the first PC to be designed with the kind of performance that is still in the top 10 percent of personal computers in the world.

Our highly integrated, modular PC systems offered a feature-rich, powerful, high-performance user with an excellent user interface. And they were the result of the best of our technology.

So it's not just that we designed the first personal computer system. It's that we designed the first personal computer system designed to be compatible with other personal computers.

Just included software, hardware, storage, and PC components. And it was the first PC to be designed with the kind of performance that is still in the top 10 percent of personal computers in the world. It's offering us to an exciting opportunity.

In fact, we're offering all the power and performance in one place. So you can get the performance you need. The Sage PC has the best performance and the best in a system. It's offering us to an exciting opportunity.

All Sage Computer has been a computer company. We've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers.

And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers.

Good News! Good News!

At Sage Computer, we've designed the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers.

We have more software, hardware, storage, and PC components than any other company. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers. And we've been designing the best personal computers for our customers.

So if you're looking for a computer, you've come to the right place. Sage Computer is the industry's first PC. And Sage Computer's first PC was a personal computer. It was the first PC to be designed with the kind of performance that is still in the top 10 percent of personal computers in the world.
